

I recently started my own business. I have to pay by the minute for all incoming as well as incoming calls, including calls that just go to my voicemail. I have been getting a lot of telemarketing calls on my voicemail that I have to pay for. I am not happy about this. (One person calls frequently in some other language and leaves the return number in that language so I can't even call back to complain!) There should be a law that reflects this problem, I cannot afford to pay for these calls and do not want to receive them.
